A 32-year-old woman presented with diffuse cervical swelling, tenderness and fever. Magnetic resonance imaging showed soft tissue swelling of the cervical spine with destructive lesions and paravertebral involvement extending from C6 to C7. Joint fluid analysis was consistent with an inflammatory joint disease. Flexible fiberoptic bronchoscopy showed abundant mucosal coating, and bronchoalveolar lavage was positive for Mycobacterium tuberculosis. The patient was treated with antituberculous drugs for four months, and had a dramatic clinical and radiological improvement. In this case, tuberculosis should be considered in the differential diagnosis of destructive cervical myositis with extradural involvement.Q: Understanding the "K & K" notation in documentation The Readme for OpenCV CV_EXPORTS_W int
